Definitions in Federal Regulations

§ 483.102 Applicability and definitions. (b)

(1) An individual is considered to have a serious mental illness (MI) if the individual meets the following requirements on diagnosis, level of impairment and duration of illness:

(i) Diagnosis. The individual has a major mental disorder diagnosable under the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders

(ii) Level of impairment. The disorder results in functional limitations in major life activities within the past 3 to 6 months that would be appropriate for the individual's developmental stage. An individual typically has at least one of the following characteristics on a continuing or intermittent basis:

(A) Interpersonal functioning. The individual has serious difficulty interacting appropriately and communicating effectively with other persons, has a possible history of altercations, evictions, firing, fear of strangers, avoidance of interpersonal relationships and social isolation;

(B) Concentration, persistence, and pace. The individual has serious difficulty in sustaining focused attention for a long enough period to permit the completion of tasks commonly found in work settings or in work-like structured activities occurring in school or home settings, manifests difficulties in concentration, inability to complete simple tasks within an established time period, makes frequent errors, or requires assistance in the completion of these tasks; and

(C) Adaptation to change. The individual has serious difficulty in adapting to typical changes in circumstances associated with work, school, family, or social interaction, manifests agitation, exacerbated signs and symptoms associated with the illness, or withdrawal from the situation, or requires intervention by the mental health or judicial system.

(iii) Recent treatment. The treatment history indicates that the individual has experienced at least one of the following:

(A) Psychiatric treatment more intensive than outpatient care more than once in the past 2 years (e.g., partial hospitalization or inpatient hospitalization); or

(B) Within the last 2 years, due to the mental disorder, experienced an episode of significant disruption to the normal living situation, for which supportive services were required to maintain functioning at home, or in a residential treatment environment, or which resulted in intervention by housing or law enforcement officials.

(3) An individual is considered to have intellectual disability (IID) if he or she has -

(i) A level of retardation (mild, moderate, severe or profound) described in the American Association on Intellectual Disability's Manual on Classification in Intellectual Disability

§ 435.1010 Definitions relating to institutional status.

Persons with related conditions means individuals who have a severe, chronic disability that meets all of the following conditions:

(a) It is attributable to -

(1) Cerebral palsy or epilepsy; or

(2) Any other condition, other than mental illness, found to be closely related to Intellectual Disability because this condition results in impairment of general intellectual functioning or adaptive behavior similar to that of mentally retarded persons, and requires treatment or services similar to those required for these persons.

(b) It is manifested before the person reaches age 22.

(c) It is likely to continue indefinitely.

(d) It results in substantial functional limitations in three or more of the following areas of major life activity:

(1) Self-care. (2) Understanding and use of language. (3) Learning. (4) Mobility. (5) Self-direction. (6) Capacity for independent living.

Useful Information

Intellectual Disability diagnosis requires intellectual impairment and deficits in adaptive functioning with onset prior to the age of 18.

Related condition requires severe, chronic disability closely related to intellectual disability which results in impairment of general intellectual functioning or adaptive behavior similar to that of persons with intellectual disability that requires similar supports. The condition must have manifested prior to the age of 22.

Preferred documentation to support onset of ID/RC

- Psychological evaluation with diagnosis based on IQ testing and adaptive behavior assessment.
- Individualized Education Plan (IEP) that contains records of IQ score and assessment of adaptive functioning.
- Psychological assessment submitted during the course of guardianship proceedings;
- Medical/tx records that provide evaluation and diagnosis of the related condition and impairments related to the condition.

In the absence of the items listed above, additional documentation may be used to provide support for ID/RC.

- Treatment records in which provide review of psychological evaluations (when the evaluation itself cannot be provided) and key information from the assessment such as when the testing was done, who it was conducted by, tests and scores obtained, diagnosis given.
- Onset of ID/RC may be supported through a comprehensive developmental history (records or information from parent/guardian, other close relative who can provide first person account of individuals developmental history) that contains specific information about the onset of any medical conditions or injuries that resulted in intellectual impairment, information about the nature of those impairments (delays or regression in key developmental milestones such as speech, gross and fine motor skills, learning, etc).
- Assessment and documentation that rules out other factors or conditions that may have contributed to diminished cognitive and adaptive functioning such as severe mental illness, chronic substance abuse, or medical conditions. This can be accomplished by documentation in which the trained professional indicates that these conditions are not present, or if documentation of ID/RC exists prior to the onset of the other conditions, or can demonstrate that the impairments are more consistent with ID/RC than other factors.

The following items are not sufficient to determine ID/RC on their own, but may be used in conjunction with other information to provide support for the presence of the condition.

- Records or reports of special education without specification of the classification of special education services that were received. Individuals may be in special education related to medical issues, behavioral health issues, specific learning disorders, etc., and it does not necessarily imply intellectual impairment.
- Failure to complete school/poor grades
- Lack of vocational history or difficulty maintaining employment
- No history of living independently, or difficulty maintaining independent housing
- Social security disability determination (without documentation that identifies reason for disability that meets criteria of ID/RC)

The following items in the individual's records may indicate that impairments are not associated with ID/RC.

- Records of medical event or injury that occurred after age 18 (ID) or 22 (RC) that are documented to have (or likely would have) caused impairments in intellectual and adaptive functioning, particularly if there is indication in the individual's history that these deficits were not present or not as severe prior to the event.
- Adaptive functioning deficits are specifically related only to physical limitations or related to symptoms of a diagnosed mental illness (such as related to depression, anxiety, psychosis, etc), or occurring in conjunction with or following significant substance use.

Documentation should include:

- Attempts of efforts to obtain previous documentation that are not included in evaluation and why they could not be obtained, etc.
- Specific description of the individual's psychosocial history (social, cognitive, vocational, educational, psychiatric, medical history)
- Specific description of the individual's adaptive functioning deficits and types of support needed (type of supports needed, frequency and intensity of supports)
- Previous types of supports and services the individual has received
- Treatment records that demonstrate evaluation and support for any diagnosis provided.
